

The Daily Courant.

Tuesday, July 23. 1706.

From the Amsterdam Gazette, dated July 27.

Genoa, July 11.

TWO Feluccas are arriv'd from Barcelona, which were dispatch'd one after the other with the News that the City of Saragossa and all Arragon have declar'd for King Charles III. That the Cities of Alicant and Cartagena have done the like; and that the Admirals Leake and Wassenear are sail'd from those 2 Places for Cadix: That the 24th past My Lord Galway took Possession of Madrid in the Name of King Charles; And that several Grandees of Spain were set out from that Capital City, to meet his Catholick Majesty and conduct him thither.

Oneglia, July 7. The Dutcheffes and the Princes of Savoy continue here; but are on their Departure for Genoa with the first fair Wind, on the Gallies which the Republick has caus'd to be fitted out to carry them thither. The last Advices concerning the Siege of Turin, are, that the Enemy carry on their Approaches but very slowly; that they make a terrible Fire on the Place, and bombard the old Town; but that the Fire of the Besieged is Superior to that of the Besiegers, whose Batteries have been often dismounted; and that the Damage their Cannon and Bombs do to the Fortification is constantly repair'd in the Night. The Castle of Asti defends it self still with Vigour, according to the last Advices; and the Marquis de Parella is in Possession of Alba, with some Militia that he has drawn together.

From the Paris Gazette, dated July 24.

From the Camp before Turin, July 14. The 8th Instant in the Evening the Duke of Orleans arriv'd here; but so late that he could not visit the Trenches. That Night the Besieged prepar'd to make 2 Sallies. But saw the Troops so well dispos'd to receive them, that they durst not attempt it. The 9th in the Morning the Duke of Orleans visited the Lines of Circumvallation and Contravallation, the Bridge laid over the Po, and the Redoubts on the Right. In the Afternoon he went into the Trenches, and examin'd the Saps one after another. He approv'd the Method that was observ'd, to carry on the Works no faster than the Miners advanc'd and discover'd the Mines of the Besieged, of which there is a great Number, in Order to preserve the Troops. He was very liberal to the Soldiers that mounted the Trenches that Day. The 10th in the Morning the Besieged sprung a Mine, which had no other Effect than to throw down some Gabions which had been set up the Night before. The 11th at Night a Mine was sprung under the Angle of the Redoubt on the Left, which blew up an intire Company of Grenadiers, of whom 20 fell into the Trenches, and the rest were buried in the Rubbish. Our Men made a Lodgment there at the same Time, and took 28 Soldiers and a Lieutenant Collonel that were there with 200 Men. The Besiegers return'd thrice to the Charge, to regain it; but were every Time repuls'd. The next Night another Mine was sprung on the Right of the Lunette: But the Besieged made so great a Fire from their Cannon, that we could not make a Lodgment there till last Night. The 10th at Day-break the Duke de la Feuillade went from the Camp to joyn his Horse which is with some Battallions at Saluces, whence the Duke of Savoy is retir'd, and is at present encamp'd at Bubi-ana on the Pelice, a League below Luzerne. The 11th the Duke of Orleans set out for Milan.

From the Paris Letter, dated July 23.

Paris, July 23. The Duke de la Feuillade having rejoyn'd his Cavalry, has defeated 2 of the Duke of Savoy's Regiments; and caus'd a great number of Peasants that had taken Arms to be hang'd. M. Or-ry is on his Departure back for Spain: The King has order'd a Supply of 2 Millions to be sent thither.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated July 27.

Milan, July 13. The Siege of Turin is very much retarded by the great Number of Mines the Besiegers meet. Last Night the Duke of Orleans arriv'd here, and was welcom'd with a triple Discharge of our Artillery. The Prince of Vaudemont accompanied by all the Nobility of this City, and attended by a numerous Retinue, met his Royal Highness, and conducted him to the Ducal Palace, where some Spanish Troops were posted against his coming, and are to mount the Guard at the Gate during his stay here.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated July 30.

Milan, July 17. The 14th the Duke of Orleans went from hence, to take upon him the Command of the Army of the 2 Crowns in Lombardy; and to Day the Marshal de Marfin pass'd through this City after him. We have receiv'd Advice, that Prince Eugene has pass'd the Canal Bianco and the Martaro, and has posted some of his Troops on the Po: That the Duke of Vendome is retir'd to the Mincio with the Army of the 2 Crowns, and has fix'd his Quarters at Trecenta; and that he has dispatch'd several Expresses, to hasten the march of 4000 Men which the Duke de la Feuillade sends to him from Piemont.

From the Paris Letter, dated July 26.

Paris, July 26. Letters from the Camp before Turin of the 20th Instant advise, that the Besieged have 4 Battallions posted in strong Intrenchments near the Capuchins; and that 'twas believ'd the Duke de la Feuillade would in a few Days cause them to be attack'd. Tho' our Miners advance apace, our Men do not flatter themselves they shall be intirely Masters of the Cover'd-Way before the End of the Month; because no Ground can be gain'd but by mining, and the Miners of the Besieged labour very diligently on their Part to oppose ours; and both Sides understand their Business very well: So that the Siege is like to last longer than we expected. 'Tis some Consolation to us however, that the Desertion from the Town continues to be great; 100 Deserters together come over to our Camp very often; and the 14th an intire Company of Grenadiers deserted, and reported that all the rest would do the like the first Opportunity. In the Defeat of two of the Duke of Savoy's Regiments, the Marquis de Parelle one of his best General Officers was wounded and taken; and that Prince having but 1800 Horse left, 'tis said he has dismounted them, that he has sent the Horses into the Alps to graze, with a Man to look to every 5 Horses; and that he has arm'd 800 Barbers of the Valleys of Luzerne, whither he is retir'd; but that his Forces are in great Want of Provisions. We have Advice that the Castle of Asti has submitted, the Garrison being oblig'd to yield themselves Prisoners at Discretion; and that the Governour, a German, is put under Confinement, as a Punishment for the insolent Answer he gave when the Count d'Estain summon'd him to surrender. The Marquis de Chamarante, Collonel of the Regiment de la Reine, was kill'd in the Trenches before that Place. 'Twas reported in the Camp before Turin, that the Duke de la Feuillade was to send 20 Squadrons to the Duke of Orleans; and that he would detach 10 Men out of each Company of Grenadiers of the whole Army, with several Battallions, to block up the Valleys, into into which the Duke of Savoy is retir'd. The total Number of the 3 Detachments that are march'd down to Flanders, from the Ruine and the Moselle, is 50 Battalions and 59 Squadrons.

From the Camp at Helchin, July 26. My Lord Halifax came hither on Friday the 23d Instant from Holland, to wait on my Lord Duke of Marlborough, with the Earl of Dorset and some other English Gentlemen who went with his Lordship to the Court of Hanover: He will return in a few Days, in order to embark for England. On Saturday the 24th Collonel Lalo march'd with Three Battalions of Foot to meet the Boats that are coming up the Lys from Ghent with Artillery and Ammunition to be employ'd in the Siege of Menin; and this Morning his Grace had an account that they were Yesterday advanc'd to St. Eloy vive, where they are landing some part to be brought up by Land; and 'tis hop'd the rest may be brought much higher by the Boats; in which case we shall be able so much the sooner to attack the Place. His Grace receiv'd a Letter the 24th from Prince Eugene, confirming his having pass'd the Adige with his Army, and that the Enemy had retir'd with great precipitation before him, leaving him Master of the Rivers Adigette and Malopera; that the Enemy were post'd on the Canal Bianco; and that he was resolv'd to push his advantage over them as much as possible, so that we are in hopes we may soon hear some further good News from those parts.

From the Camp at Helchin, July 29. The 27th Instant part of the Artillery arriv'd from Ghent in the Camp before Menin: And the rest with the Ammunition and other Necessaries for that Siege will be brought up thither with all Diligence. The same Day we made a general Forrage within a Mile and a half of Tournay, without any Loss. Menin was invest'd the 23d. The Garrison in it is commanded by the Marquis de Caraman Lieutenant General.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated July 27.

Valenciennes, July 23. The 21st the last Troops that were detach'd from Germany pass'd by here for the Camp at Kievrain. The Army encamp'd there were mustered Yesterday by the Elector of Bavaria, and are between 30 and 40000 Men strong, they have begun to intrench themselves.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated July 30:

Mons, July 26. The Elector of Bavaria having on Thursday last review'd the Army encamp'd at Kievrain, return'd hither the same Day; and the next sent 47 Field-Pieces from hence thither. 'Tis talk'd, that most of the Troops garrison'd in Luxembourg, Charleroy, Namur, and several other Places on the Sambre, will be order'd to draw out and join the said Army; which are intrenching themselves behind the Haine, to wait the more securely for the Arrival of the Duke of Vendome who is expected the beginning of the next Week, and to prevent Desertion.

'Tis advis'd from Lisse, that above half the Inhabitants of that City, were retir'd thence with their best Effects to Douay and other Places. The French work Night and Day to repair and strengthen the Fortifications of Furnes.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated July 27.

Courtray, July 25. Since the 23d about 12000 Pioneers have pass'd by this City, for the Camp before Menin; as also a great Number of Waggons, with Fascines and other Necessaries for the Siege. 'Tis said the Garrison of that Place consists of 4000 Men, and that they have several Vaults to retire to for Shelter from Bombs: 'Tis certainly a very strong Town, but some Dutch Ingenieurs having seiz'd the Sluces of Communes, and set Men to work to cut very deep Trenches for turning the Water out of the Lys, by which Means the Ditches of Menin will be dried up, 'tis reckon'd it cannot hold out above 10 Days after the Batteries begin to play.

Brussels, July 23. The Desertion of the Enemy's Troops continues to be great, especially of the Foreign and Walloon Troops in their Service; the 21st Instant an intire Troop of French Hussars came hither from Namur. General Verboom is sent Prisoner to the Citadel of Arras, for shewing a Desire to quit the Service of France.

Ague, July 30. Letters from France, of the 26th Instant, say 'twas talk'd at Court that Order would be sent to the Duke de la Feuillade, to break up the Siege of Turin. The News which the King of Prussia received from the Prince of Anhalt Dessau, is confirm'd by Letters of the 16th Instant, which the Imperial Minister here has receiv'd from Prince Eugene, and communicated to the States. The Envoy of Savoy has likewise received a Confirmation of it, by Letters from the Marquis de Prie dated the 17th from Verona: Which Letters have likewise been communicated to the States: They import, that the Consternation of the Enemy is inexpressible; and that they have abandoned all their formidable Works between the Lake of Garda and the Adige, and down the side of that River, and are retir'd over the Mincio. Those Letters add, that Dispositions were making by Prince Eugene for advancing to the Mincio and attacking the Enemy there, but other Letters say his Highness will forbear to push on his Advantages, till the Hessians are arriv'd near enough to support the Troops that he will leave behind, and to form together a second Body. The Hereditary Prince of Hesse Cassel has written from Inspruck the 20th Instant, that the Van of his Troops were arriv'd there; and that in 15 Days more they would arrive on the Adige near Verona. The Trenches were to be open'd before Menin Yesterday, if not the Day before; 'Tis generally believ'd that Siege will be laid to Tournay too; and that the Duke of Marlborough will advance towards Lisse to cover both Sieges. The French Court is extremely apprehensive the Allies will succeed in their intended Descent. The Numbers of Men that have risen in some Provinces of the Kingdom, and take Salt out of the Magazines of the Farmers of that Revenue, to distribute it gratis among the People, are grown so formidable, that the King has been oblig'd to publish a Declaration against them; which shall be in our next.
